The children’s summit is open to all children.

Statement of the Protection of the Rights of the Child and Sustainable Development

Children are 2 billion of the world’s population. Children are human beings with equal Human Rights. Yet children are more vulnerable to violence, exploitation, poverty, hunger, inequity, discrimination and lack of participation in their society at all levels. Children are regularly left out of true partnership and participation with those who make decisions that affect their lives and the lives of their future generations.

The protection of children’s rights in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development foundation starts with equity of opportunity for children to have their voices heard and opinions known through direct participation in the active realization of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Children through various AFI programmes have had the opportunity to express their opinions not only to one another but also to international stakeholders at the European Parliament, The Senegalese Parliament and also the Palais des Nations since 2014. The AFI Youth Ambassadors Summits at the Human Rights Councils parallel events during the last three years (2014-2016) have had the opportunity to directly participate in their own child-led summits at the United Nations on issues that are included in both the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and the sustainable development goals (SDGs) through presentation and also group meetings chaired by children. The children presented and deliberated on subjects that included clean drinking water and nutrition, education, exploitation of children, Child Labour, discrimination, violence against children, Refugees, promotion of children’s human rights, equity and justice and fair wages.
