GUIDANCE AND QUESTIONNAIRE FOR GOVERNMENTS

The purpose of this questionnaire is to provide Member States with guidance for the preparation of national evaluation reports on the national implementation of the first phase of the World Programme for Human Rights Education.

I. GUIDANCE

1. Introduction – The World Programme for Human Rights Education

The General Assembly, in resolution 59/113B of 14 July 2005, adopted the revised draft Plan of Action\(^2\) for the first phase of the World Programme, which proposes a concrete strategy and practical ideas for implementing human rights education nationally. Resolution 59/113B, inter alia, encouraged “all States to develop initiatives within the World Programme and, in particular, to implement, within their capabilities, the Plan of Action” (para. 2) and appealed to “relevant organs, bodies or agencies of the United Nations system, as well as all other international and regional intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, within their respective mandates, to promote and technically assist, when requested, the national implementation of the Plan of Action” (para. 4).

2. Background to the evaluation

The evaluation of the first phase of the World Programme for Human Rights Education is mandated both by the General Assembly and by the Human Rights Council as outlined below. The Plan of Action adopted for the first phase of the World Programme by all United Nations Member States through the General Assembly provides:

49. At the conclusion of the first phase (2005-2007) of the World Programme, each country will undertake an evaluation of actions implemented under this plan of action. The evaluation will take into consideration progress made in a number of areas, such as legal frameworks and policies, curricula, teaching and learning processes and tools, revision of

\(^1\) Although the first phase was initially launched for three years, until 2007, the Human Rights Council subsequently decided, in its resolution 62/4 (28 September 2007) to extend the first phase of the World Programme by two more years until the end of 2009.

textbooks, teacher training, improvement of the school environment, etc. The Member States will be called upon to provide their final national evaluation report to the United Nations inter-agency coordinating committee.

51. The inter-agency coordinating committee will prepare a final evaluation report based on national evaluation reports, in cooperation with relevant international, regional and non-governmental organizations. The report will be submitted to the General Assembly at its sixty-third session (2008).

The Human Rights Council in resolution 12/4 of 1 October 2009:

6. Reminds Member States of the need to prepare and submit their national evaluation reports on the first phase of the World Programme to the United Nations Inter-Agency Coordinating Committee on Human Rights Education in the School System by early 2010; and

7. Requests the Coordinating Committee to submit a final evaluation report of the implementation of the first phase of the World Programme, based on national evaluation reports, in cooperation with relevant international, regional and non-governmental organizations, to the General Assembly at its sixty-fifth session (autumn 2010).

This evaluation will be carried out by the United Nations Inter-Agency Coordinating Committee on Human Rights Education in the School System (UNIACC), for which the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) provides the secretariat.

3 Content of evaluation

The aforementioned Plan of Action defines human rights education and outlines key actions to be undertaken by ministries of education and other school and civil society actors working in partnership to integrate human rights education effectively in the primary and secondary school systems. The UNIACC evaluation will therefore be based on national reporting on key elements drawn from the Plan of Action, namely the five main components of human rights education in the primary and secondary school systems, in the context of the minimum action which Member States are encouraged to undertake during the first phase of the World Programme.

3.1 Components of human rights education in the primary and secondary school systems

Human rights education promotes a rights-based approach to education. The Plan of Action provides at paragraph 18:

Therefore, human rights education in the primary and secondary school systems includes:

(a) Policies — developing in a participatory way and adopting coherent educational policies, legislation and strategies that are human rights-based, including curriculum improvement and training policies for teachers and other educational personnel;

UNIACC was established in September 2006, as mandated by the Plan of Action, to facilitate coordinated United Nations support to the national integration of human rights education in national school systems. The Inter-Agency Committee, for which OHCHR provides the Secretariat, is composed of 12 UN system entities and affiliated organizations, namely: ILO, OHCHR, UNAIDS, UNDG, UNDP, UNDPI, UNESCO, UNFPA, UNHCR, UNICEF, UNRWA, and the World Bank. The Council of Europe has participated as an observer.
(b) Policy implementation — planning the implementation of the abovementioned educational policies by taking appropriate organizational measures and by facilitating the involvement of all stakeholders;

(c) Learning environment — the school environment itself respects and promotes human rights and fundamental freedoms. It provides the opportunity for all school actors (students, teachers, staff and administrators and parents) to practice human rights through real-life activities. It enables children to express their views freely and to participate in school life;

(d) Teaching and learning — all teaching and learning processes and tools are rights-based (for instance, the content and objectives of the curriculum, participatory and democratic practices and methodologies, appropriate materials including the review and revision of existing textbooks, etc.);

(e) Education and professional development of teachers and other personnel — providing the teaching profession and school leadership, through pre- and in-service training, with the necessary knowledge, understanding, skills and competencies to facilitate the learning and practice of human rights in schools, as well as with appropriate working conditions and status.

A detailed description of the five components and related courses of action, to serve as a reference tool, is provided in the appendix.

3.2 Minimum action required by States

Paragraph 26 of the Plan of Action on “Stages of the implementation strategy” calls for analysis of the current situation of human rights education in the school system (stage 1); setting priorities and developing a national implementation strategy (stage 2); implementing and monitoring (stage 3); and evaluating (stage 4).

Paragraph 27 of the Plan of Action provides that Member States are encouraged to undertake as minimum action during the first phase (2005-2007) of the World Programme the following:

(a) An analysis of the current situation of human rights education in the school system (stage 1);
(b) Setting of priorities and the development of the national implementation strategy (stage 2);
(c) The initial implementation of planned activities.
II. QUESTIONNAIRE FOR GOVERNMENTS

The questionnaire below to be completed by Governments contains questions that should be addressed in Member States' national reports. Please mark the specific answers with corresponding numbers of the questions. In addition to the questionnaire, supplementary information may also be provided as additional attachments to your report. Governments are strongly encouraged to involve National Human Rights Institutions and civil society in the preparation of their reports. Please return the completed questionnaire and any other additional information to the Methodology, Education and Training Section at the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (by fax: +41 22 917 9008 or by email: registry@ohchr.org; with copy to wphre@ohchr.org) no later than 31 March 2010. Submissions by email are preferred, but any materials not available electronically may be posted to OHCHR, attn: METS – WPHRE, Palais des Nations, 8-14 Avenue de la Paix, CH-1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland. Replies received by the deadline will be reflected in the evaluation report to be submitted to the UN General Assembly 65th session and may also be uploaded on OHCHR's website for the World Programme.

Part 2: COMPONENTS OF HUMAN RIGHTS EDUCATION IN SCHOOLS

A. Educational policies\(^5\) and policy implementation

10. Do education laws, education policies and education policy objectives exist which explicitly refer to the following?\(^6\)

- Human rights \(\square \) \(\square\)
- The right to education \(\square \) \(\square\)
- A rights-based approach to education \(\square \) \(\square\)
- Human rights education \(\square \) \(\square\)

You may elaborate further if you wish:

11. Is human rights education incorporated in national plans and strategies including those listed below where they exist?\(^7\)

- National human rights plans \(\square \) \(\square\) \(\square\)
- National plans of action against racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance \(\square \) \(\square\) \(\square\)
- National poverty reduction strategies and other development plans \(\square \) \(\square\) \(\square\)
- National sectoral plans for primary and secondary education \(\square \) \(\square\) \(\square\)
- National plans for Education for All (EFA) \(\square \) \(\square\) \(\square\)
- National policy frameworks as part of the Decade on Education for Sustainable Development (2005-2014) \(\square \) \(\square\) \(\square\)

If yes to any of the above, please elaborate:

Human rights education is included in our national plan of action against racism and discrimination, which is monitored by the Centre for Equal Opportunities and Opposition to Racism (for more information: www.diversiteit.be)

Flemish Community:

In the framework of the Decade on Education for Sustainable Development an implementation plan for ESD has been developed. In the curriculum (and by consequence in this plan) ESD is seen as the intertwining of social, economic and environmental aspects. This incorporates aspects of human rights education.

abordée de manière transversale et s’insère dans l’éducation à la citoyenneté. La réflexion qui a abouti au décret de 2007 relatif au renforcement de l’éducation à la citoyenneté responsable et active au sein des établissements de la Communauté française a trois fondements essentiels. L’éducation à la responsabilité citoyenne passe par une connaissance des institutions et de matières qui structurent notre société. C’est elle également qui permet de mettre en œuvre les principes démocratiques, les valeurs, attitudes et savoir-faire qu’ils sous-tendent dans la vie sociale et politique quels que soient les secteurs. Enfin, l’école est le lieu privilégié pour éveiller concrètement l’intérêt des jeunes aux principes démocratiques auquel fait appel le principe de représentation.

La citoyenneté responsable et active couvre la connaissance et l’exercice des droits et responsabilités civiques. Démocratie, respect des droits universels, tolérance, solidarité et participation font partie des valeurs systématiquement liées à ce concept. Des structures officielles en Communauté française, l’une pour l’enseignement fondamental, l’autre destinée à l’enseignement secondaire ont pour objectifs de susciter les initiatives dans ce domaine, de proposer des projets et de diffuser les bonnes pratiques.

Par ailleurs, un récent décret de mars 2009 vise également à favoriser auprès des élèves la transmission de la mémoire des crimes de génocide, des crimes contre l’humanité, des crimes de guerre et des faits de résistance ou des mouvements ayant résisté aux régimes qui ont suscité ces crimes.

Dans le cadre du développement durable, en juillet 2003 a eu lieu un accord de coopération entre la Communauté française et la Région wallonne relatif à l’éducation à l’environnement.

12. Has a national implementation strategy been developed to implement any human rights education policy objective?

There is an implementation strategy to implement the cross-curricular attainment targets, which includes human rights education.

If yes, have young people/learners been involved in both developing the national implementation strategy and in its implementation?

Flemish Community:

The cross-curricular attainment targets for secondary education have recently been evaluated (see answer to question 13), based on a scientific evaluation. The main goal of this evaluation was to assess the social and pedagogical relevance of the current attainment targets and their feasibility. As part of this research 6000 pupils were questioned.

Has the strategy been published and disseminated? If yes, please share a copy or refer to a website address if available online.

Yes, by the regular communication canals of the ministries of Education.

*Plan of Action, appendix B.10.
13. Is human rights education present in the national curriculum and educational standards? If yes, please explain its status (e.g. obligatory or optional, subject-based or cross-curricular?).

Yes

The Flemish education authorities issue a core curriculum in the form of attainment targets (objectives regarding knowledge, skills and attitudes). These minimal objectives, issued by the Flemish Parliament, define knowledge and attitudes for all schools. The inspectorate evaluates whether the schools reach these quality standards or not. Schools are free to determine their own way of implementing these targets. In that respect, there is a general obligation to work on the objectives relating to human rights education, but there are no guidelines regarding the pedagogical methods schools should use.

In primary education the general framework for human rights education can mainly be found in developmental objectives for world orientation. These include socio-economic, socio-cultural and political and legal aspects of society. In secondary education, the framework for human rights education can be found in the attainment targets concerning history and the cross-curricular attainment targets for citizenship education.

The cross-curricular attainment targets have recently been evaluated on social and pedagogical relevance and feasibility. Based on the results of the evaluation, a new concept of cross-curricular attainment targets has been developed, which will be implemented in all secondary schools in September 2010. This concept refers to a set of rather broad objectives (e.g. taking responsibility, showing respect, being critical, and so on) and a set of more concrete objectives within a structure of 'contexts': the political-juridical, the socio-economic and socio-cultural context. The main focus for citizenship education is the political-judicial context. It pays attention to four topics concerning citizenship education:

- Active citizenship: which aims to stimulate active involvement in society. This presupposes basic knowledge of rights and duties, enquiry procedures and the value of active involvement.
- Human rights and basic liberties, as laid down by constitution and international treaties.
- Insight into features, procedures and mechanism of a democratic system
- European and international dimension

14. Please state whether guidelines exist for writing or revising textbooks that reflect human rights principles?\textsuperscript{10}

As already stated above, the educational authorities only stipulate minimum goals. The educational freedom of schools (which is embedded in the Constitution) implies that schools can decide for themselves how they implement these goals and what didactic materials they use.

Flemish Community:

The Flemish Government itself does not provide materials and methods that can be used to teach human rights in the classroom. Educational publishers develop handbooks, materials, ... based on the minimum goals stipulated by the educational authorities. The same goes for several NGO's and other organisations active in the field of citizenship or human rights education. These organisations can freely distribute information about their materials and training through the site of the Ministry of Education of the Flemish Community as well as through the ministry's publication 'Klasse' which is freely distributed to all schools and teachers.

Have textbooks been prepared according to these guidelines?

see answer to question 14

15. Please refer to any national or sub-national policies that promote a human rights-based approach to school governance, management, discipline procedures, inclusion policies and other regulations and practices affecting the school culture and access to education.\textsuperscript{11}

The right to education is guaranteed by the Law of 29 June 1983 which made education compulsory till the age of 18.

Flemish Community:

The Act on equal educational opportunities of 28 June 2002 was created to ensure the access to education. It lays down the right to enrolment of all children in nursery, primary and secondary education.

On April 1 2004, the Flemish Parliament approved the so called 'Decree on participation'. This decree (which amounts to a law) is a legal framework for participation at school level. The school council contains representatives from parents, staff and the local community. In secondary education they also include pupils. This policy supports the implementation of the core curriculum on education for citizenship and the other way around. Participation of pupils is also included in the cross-curricular attainment targets in secondary education.

16. Is there a comprehensive training policy on human rights education for teachers and other educational personnel in schools?
Teachers must dispose of the necessary competences to implement the different attainment targets in their teaching practice. By consequence, human rights education is an integral part of initial teacher training. Teachers have to relate the rights of children to their practice and in the advice on pupil’s school career. This competence was included in the list of basic competences of teachers.
Several organisations and ngo's offer in service training in the field of human rights education. Schools receive a yearly budget with which in-service training for teachers can be financed, but they decide completely autonomously how they want to spend this budget, taking into account the specific needs of the school.

18. Do practices not defined as human rights education exist in your country which reflect the principles of the rights-based approach to education, such as peace education, citizenship and values education, multicultural education, global education, education for tolerance or education for sustainable development? If yes, please explain.

Yes
These are considered as different perspectives from which the cross-curricular attainment targets (almost in general, but mainly citizenship education) can be dealt with.

The different authorities (local, regional, national) and civil society are often involved in the development of educational materials and training concerning human rights education.

In the so-called broad or community schools the main aim is to strengthen ties between the school and local environment (including local council and civil society organisations). A broad school is a network of organisations (social, cultural, ...) around the school which together try to assure the personal and social development of children and youngsters.

- Changes in students' knowledge, skills, values, attitudes and behaviour with regard to understanding of and respect for human rights

Flemish Community:

The education inspectorate checks whether schools have reached the quality standards, defined by attainment targets. They also check if and how the participation decree (see question 15) has been implemented. The inspectors do not inspect individual teachers and their teaching practice nor do they check students' achievements.

For more information: www.ond.vlaanderen.be/inspectie/english

There is no monitoring system to assess changes in students' knowledge, skills,...

But as stated above, the cross-curricular attainment targets have recently been evaluated on social and pedagogical relevance and feasibility. The effectiveness of citizenship education was a particular focus in this research. The results show, first of all, a positive impact of citizenship education on the knowledge of pupils concerning human rights, politics, civil society, state administration,... However, this positive impact only becomes manifest from the 3rd stage onwards (16 to 18 year olds).

As far as attitudes are concerned (towards ethnocentrism, repression, the principles of representational democracy), it was shown that higher knowledge on different aspects of citizenship education has a positive impact on democratic attitudes. Another important factor is the school 'atmosphere'. The more democratic a school is organized, the more democratic the attitudes of pupils will be.

Flanders is also involved in the International Civic and Citizenship Education Study, coordinated by the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement. The goal is to investigate the ways in which young people are prepared to undertake their roles as citizens. In Flanders 3000 pupils of 2nd year of secondary education (+/- 14 year old) and nearly 2000 pupils of 4th year of secondary education (+/- 16 year old) will be involved in the research.

22. Please outline how schools fund human rights education including sources and the percentage of State budget allocated in this area?

Schools receive a global budget each year to fund all sorts of educational activities, travels,... and also a yearly budget with which in-service training for teachers can be financed. Schools, again, decide completely autonomously how they want to spend this budget, taking into account the specific needs of the school. Therefore, it is impossible to state how much is spent on educational activities concerning human rights education.
